

Bonnie works at Pallium Canada and is a public health professional whose work mobilizes Compassionate Communities across Canada and focuses on the community and their role in supporting those experiencing serious illness, caregiving, dying, and grieving. Bonnie has led community-level initiatives across Canada and is an active contributor to Compassionate

Communities work internationally. She is a council member of the Public Health Palliative Care International Association and a contributor to CancerandWork.ca. Bonnie has been a strong advocate for the Compassionate Communities movement since the release of the Compassionate City Charter in 2015.